This was the seal of office of Hans Jakob Schneider when he was the Ammann (administrator) of the Hofsteig. This district took in a part of western Austria, adjacent to the Bodensee. As the church records were destroyed during the Thirty Years War Jakob Schneider's actual date of birth is not known, but it was probably around 1620. It is known that he was the Hofsteig Ammann from 1674 to 1677 and again from 1686 to 1689. He was a very able administrator. Jakob Schneider died on November 5, 1695. His seal of office depicts a ram carrying the Montfort banner over his shoulder with his right foreleg.

Acknowledgments

Donna and Mary are ever so grateful to the family that helped to put this together! Without the help of each and every one of you it could NOT have happened. The loan of records, pictures and other documents made it so nearly complete. We have tried to keep things in the order of the children, of Matthew and Elizabeth, but some things came in at different times and perfect order hasn't been maintained. Any miss spellings or typing errors are regretful and I hope the identity of people is correct; we have tried to get more opinions when in doubt. When we had dates we have tried to include this information. We are certainly not professionals but have done our best for ourselves and you. All of the time this has taken we need to thank David and Joe, our husbands, for putting up with late dinners and time spent on the computers. Also all of the stacks of paper and pictures in the office part of our homes and the dinning room table.

A LOOK INTO THE HISTORY OF WOLFURT :

by Siegfried Heim , transl. Dr. Thomas Schneider

On the fertile alluvial fans of the mountain torrents tributary to the Ach, between the sinister 'Ippichwald' forest and the boggy swamps of the 'Ried' - that's the site where our community of Wolfurt has developed at the slopes of the Streußberg.

Even though noteworthy archaeological findings are missing it can be taken for granted that man lived here as early as the Stone Age, and that the Celtic 'Raetians' built their humble farmsteads in this area in the last century before Christ.

When Vorarlberg was conquered by the Romans in 15 B.C., the crossing over the Bregenzer Ach became an important strategic factor. It was here, in the Wolfurt area, that the big Roman road from Chur (Switzerland) to Augsburg (Bavaria) crossed the wild river.

About 500 A.D. the Alemanni took possession of the lower parts of our area. It was that people who gave our place its name. Tradition has it that Wolfurt may mean "Wohl-Furt", i.e. "good ford". However, etymologists claim that the prefix "Wol" might signify the same as in the place-names "Wahlenmähd", or "Walgau". Thus Wolfurt, for the Alemanni, would have been the ford leading into the land of the Raetoroman

"Wale" (= irrigation channel system as typical of that people's settlements). A third theory points out that the Knights of Wolford, according to legend a family of Scottish origin with a coat of arms bearing a wolf, accounted for the name of the village in the 13th century.

Of the Alemannic farmsteads within our community's area two grew to be important settlements - the 'Kellhof', and the 'Hof zur Steig'. The Kellhof, nowadays incorporated into our community, had possessions all over the Rhine valley, and above all in Bildstein, Schwarzach, and Kennelbach. Up to 200 people had to pay tribute to the Earls of Bregenz, later to the German King and to the Earls of Montfort-Werdenberg, and finally to the Earls of Hohenems; military service for those masters was also implied. The Kellhofers paid 4500 Gulden in 1775 to get free from serfdom, keeping their independence and their own jurisdiction until 1808.

The 'Hof zur Steig' in Rickenbach was of similar importance, also having possessions all over the lower parts of the land. All peasants commonly owned the large 'Ippichwald' forest and the 'Ried', as well as the woods along the Ach. The woods of the Steußberg were cleared, and the Ried drained by people from Hofsteig. What's more, it was from there that the colonization of the Bregenzerwald was initiated.

Finally, the whole area of Hard, Lauterach, Schwarzach, Bildstein, Buch, and Wolfurt was united into one large community, the only exception being the Kellhof. The judiciary district of Hofsteig was sold by the Earls of Montfort-Bregenz to the Hapsburg dynasty.

In order to protect the ford, the Montforts had erected Feldegg Castle on the Hexenbühel, later selling it, together with bondservants and all rights, to the Abbey of Mehrerau. The castle became a ruin, and its remnants were finally taken down and quarried for building material in 1830. Such was also the fate of Kuien Castle on the Rutzenberg, which is said to have been burnt down by the Appenzeller forces in 1408.

Wolfurt Castle, situated on the hill above our village, has a remarkable history. There is proof in documents of the afore-mentioned first house of Knights with the wolf in their coat of arms, fiefholders to the Stauffer kings since 1220. This house was to produce, among others, influential abbots and other church dignitaries, as well as famous warriors.

Ulrich and Konrad of Wolfurt, two brothers, conquered the Kingdom of Naples for Ludwig the Great of Hungary as leaders of a mercenary army in 1348; appointed Hungarian Dukes they rode to the Pope's court at Avignon. Konrad the Knight donated the famous Wolfurt Chalice to the Abbey of Präfers in 1364; together with the deed of gift the chalice is now among the most precious pieces of the Swiss treasury. The family died out in the 15th century.

The castle was enfeoffed by Emperor Maximilian to the Leber family of Bregenz then. The new owners brought forth numerous councillors, abbots and other church dignitaries, all playing important roles in the towns of the Lake Constance area. Laux of Wolfurt, for example, became leader of the Salzburg militia, Eucharis became Abbot Regent of Kempten. After the second family line had died out, the castle changed hands several times, and finally fell into decay. After a fire in 1940 it was rebuilt and given its present shape.

After the christianization of the Alemanni the population of Wolfurt, together with their neighbours, became subjects of the parish of St. Gallus in Bregenz, but possessed their own chapel (St. Nikolaus) as early as 1172. In 1512, the village was granted a parish of its own, together with Schwarzach and the 'settlements on the hill' (Bildstein and Buch). The present parish church was erected in 1833/34 by the architect Negrelli. The chapel in Rickenbach dates back to the year 1886.

The judicial districts of Hofsteig and Kellhof were dissolved in 1808 by the King of Bavaria, their areas allotted for administration to six aldermen. Of the six resulting communities it was Wolfurt which then had the biggest population (1143 inhabitants), followed by Hard (880), Bildstein (831), Lauterach (790), Schwarzach (281), and Buch (241).

Almost every family possessed two or three pieces of cattle. Grain, corn, and potatoes were grown, together with flax and fruit, but the area often suffered from hailstorms, droughts or floodings, and was also haunted by war and epidemics at times. Besides being farmers, a lot of the inhabitants of Wolfurt had to add to the family income by working as millers, blacksmiths, saddlers, tanners, or coopers; others went to the south of Germany to work in the building trade. Women and children found work in damp weaving vaults, or spinning wool at home.

During the latter half of the 19th century the textile factories of the vicinity provided a welcome means of income for the people of Wolfurt, and outwork embroidery brought moderate wealth to the village around 1900.

Instead of the old ford, a wooden bridge was erected in Kennelbach, leading to the Schindler factory, and a road was built through the Schwarzsachtobel gorge. In 1868 a post office was opened in the Stern Inn, and in 1872 the railway came to Schwarzach. Electricity was installed in 1901, in 1902 Kennelbach also got a railway link, and the first telephone could be operated in 1904, the same year that the new bridge across the Ach was completed.

Over the preceding one hundred years the population had doubled, numbering 2265 in 1910. That was mainly due to immigration from Italy and the Krain province in Northern Yugoslavia.

However, heavy setbacks were to follow soon. 86 casualties were caused by the First, 99 by the Second World War. During the period between the wars many people from Wolfurt emigrated to America.

A heavy change took place within a short period of time after 1950, and the peasant village turned into a small industrial and residential town, which brought about a considerable growth in population. Immigrants from Carinthia and Styria as well as new citizens from elsewhere in the Bregenzerwald, or from the town of Bregenz, valuing the favourable site of Wolfurt, added to the number. From 1970 on there were also large groups of foreign workers from Yugoslavia and Turkey. The population reached its highest level ever in 1975, numbering 6.637, among them 1.197 foreign workers. Since then, the rapidity of growth has diminished.

After the construction of the freight train depot Wolfurt was appointed a market town. Nevertheless Wolfurt has remained a thorough village. The communal spirit of the forefathers has lived on in a flourishing social life, which provides ample opportunity for industriousness, regard for one another, and mutual aid to develop in our community.

The Schneider's in Wolfurt

The Schneider's were the dominant family in the area of the Vorarlberg-Rheindelta, especially in Hoechst. Even though only a small fraction of the family lived in Hofsteig, they were also quite influential in this county. The Egger-Schneider's believe that their roots can be found in Hofsteig.

The first records about the Schneider family can be found in Sigerhalden in Buch and date back to 1487. From there, the Schneiders' populated the Streussberg. There is even a small village "zum Schnieder" and a mountain peak named after them (Schneiderspitze, approximately 3000 feet high). Documents prove, that the Schneider's managed to acquire property even outside Bildstein:

1512: Ulrich Schnider uf dem Stuesberg buys the estate "zur Tannen" in Alberschwede from Hans Kalb.

1518: Peter Schnider uf dem Stuesberg buys the estate "zu Botzenow im Buech" from Hainrich Schneberg. When the church library of Wolfurt opened in 1650, the families of Christian and Michael Schneider were still living in Wolfurt. Other Schneider families moved to the valley or settled in Lauterach and Wolfurt.

Documents from the church library of Wolfurt testify about Hofsteig's "mayor" Jakob Schneider from Hofsteig (died on 11/5/1695) who must have been born around the year 1620 and was "mayor" of Hofsteig from 1671 to 1677 and from 1686 to 1689. Between his terms and after his second term, he served as juror at the court. He was a very well respected public figure, and he was one of the last guardians of Hofsteigian law.

Scheider's mayor-ring shows a buck that holds the Monfoter flag with one of his front legs to its shoulder. Different artists later on exchanged the buck for a horse and the flag for a cross. In 1992, the Hofsteig club of musicians chose that motive as the symbol for the collaboration of its eight marching bands.

Mayor Jakob Ammann was married three times. Only the last child from his first marriage with Katharina Reiser (died 3/25/1671), Magdalena, is mentioned in the baptism-records that were started in 1651. There were no kids from the second and third marriage. When Jakob Schneider died in 1695, his heirs donated a new bible and introduced a memorial day.

Jakob Schneider's son Johann Schneider, born in 1645, died 1702, is first mentioned in the church records when he married (the virgin Maria van Ach) on April 26th in 1672. "Best man" was his father Jakob Schneider. When Johann Schneider mentioned in official record, his name is often accompanied by the title "juror", which indicates that the son continued to profit from the high esteem his father enjoyed, and that Johann also served as juror and representative of Wolfurt. The "mayor" probably resided in the big house #58c in the "im Gaessele" alley, Kirchstrasse 39. At any rate, records prove that Johann's children Johann and Anna used to live there. The house burned down in 1989.

1773 Josef Gmeiner (from Lutzo-Schrinars in Rickenbach), married into the Schneider family, and the Schneider name was extinguished from the "mayor"-house in the Kirchgasse. Schneider blood, however, continued to flow in other "heritage-lines". Johann's oldest son, Jakob Schneider (1673-1723), living at the border of the town, married Katharina Rohner, a sister of the 'mayor' of Hofsteig, Jerg Rohner.

In 1740, heir children owned the buildings C117 and C119. Both burned down in 1907. Through additional marriages between the Schneider's and different "mayor"-families (Mueller, Schertler, and Fischer), the Schneiders became more and more influential.

The power of the Schneider family reached its peak when Mathias Schneider (1745-1833) was elected 'mayor' of Wolfurt and managed the 'Mehrauer-estates'. In addition to his own house, he constructed within a couple of years three additional houses for his children and bought another one.

After these golden years, with the beginning of the industrial revolution, the Schneider-families impoverished fast. Many families of the Schneider clan, that had owned 10 houses in Wolfurt in 1843 emigrated to America. The others slowly but certainly lost their homes. The last of the Schneider family to live in Wolfurt, Ferdinand Schneider, died in 1917, impoverished and living in a dismal apartment.

Meanwhile, Ferdinand Schneiders cousins that emigrated to America were already owning their own farms in remote locations in Minnesota and Canada and were raising numerous healthy offspring's. Today, in Minnesota and Canada the Schneider family counts about 400 members. While most of them named their kids Brian, Nancy, Bruce, Jessalin, and Terrence Schneider, some names (Marie Teresa, Matthias, Joseph, Fidel) remind you of the family roots in Wolfurt.

Another Schneider family lives in Augsburg. They are descendants from Michael Schneider, who had to join Napoleon's army in its attempt to conquer Russia.

In June 1993, the Augsburg Schneiders, represented by the first engineer Josef Schneider and his son, professor Dr. Thomas, met a couple members of the Canada-Schneiders, Wilfried Schneider (Director of Human Resources) and his son Gregory, who works in the most remote north western region of Canada as a teacher. Needless to say, they met in Wolfurt and visited Sigerhalden, Schneider's peek, the church, the cemetery and the old homes of their predecessors. During a festivity in the townhall they met a number of descendant's of mayor Jakob Schneider: The Kliens from Oberfeld, The Spirigs from Neudorf, Eberles from Strohdorf, Kloso-Fischers from Feldegg, Reiners (hairdresser) and Dietrichs from Spetenlehen, Sammueller Boehlers, Lehrers from Buehel, Bernhardo and Mohro Fideles from Unterlinden and a number of others.

Three important books warrant, that the Schneider family will not be forgotten in Wolfurt:

- 1) The Schneider Chronicles (Volume 1), written by the painter Anton Schneider, born in 1747. The book describes the french wars in Wolfurt between 1800-1809 and can be found in the state archiv.
- 2) The Schneider Chronicles (Volume 2), written by his cousin and mayor Mathias Schneider, 1745-1833. Mathias describes not only the war, but gives a detailed report of village life: Harvest, hail, marriages, funerals and the likes are documented here. In addition, this volume contains a lot of statistical information on population and cattle.

3) The Schneider Chronicles (Volume 3), written by Mathias' grandson Ferdinand Schneider (1841-1917), describing his unsteady life as insurance salesman, hired hand, singer, musician, pyrotechnician, hunter, mountain-guide, biologist and local politician. His granddaughter's (Laura Giefing) last will specified that the Chronicles 2 and 3 should be inherited by the community archive (of Wolfurt).

For adults and children over 8 years, Children under 8 yrs get half of the provision.

The necessary sacks and things for packing the provisions also the necessary dishes and bedding are provided by the agency.

Mr. Zwilchenbart agrees to pay for enough room on the middle deck of a ship leaving Le Havre, France in March for sweet water, wood, light room in the kitchen to cook, the bed, 200 lbs luggage, needed medicine, and all other hospital--and head money required by America.

The agency agreed to get the immigrant to the designated place for the agreed on price, even if the ship, because of an accident or other reason cannot complete the trip.

The boarding is on _____ 186_, on the sail-ship

THE PROPOSAL

For 2 adults Pars Pearson Fr. 201 Fr. 402

For 2 persons together

Paul at the signing of the contract

In words, three hundred and sixty two franken to be paid before leaving.

The big luggage belonging to the passenger has to be marked with the name of the owner and the name of the city it is going to and should be brought to the railway station in St. Gallen, Switzerland by the passenger and deposited. The agency agrees to send it on. If this is not done, the agency is not responsible for sending it. However if everything is done according to the, then the agency is paying for lost luggage before boarding the ship: Whatever was listed as the worth of the things.

The passenger did not want any insurance of his luggage, he can still have it insured at the seaport by the ship's owner if he pays for it himself.

13.

The shipping does not take place, until the immigrant has all the lawful immigration papers. Minors may have to prove their age by showing a christening certificate.

14.

This contract can not be broken nor can it transfer to other persons. If there is a new contract being signed with a third person, then Mr. Z. Zwilchenbart is entitled to half the money that was agreed on in No.10.

15.

This trip can not be taken by persons that are: retarded, insane, moonstruck, or other mentally ill, one eyed, blind, deaf or dumb, lame or crippled, persons over 60 yrs. of age, also children under 13 yrs. of age who have no relatives to take care of them.

16.

If the immigrant who on the way to the seaport or in the seaport drowns, and can not board the ship, have still to pay all.

17.

The immigrant is allowed to have the right to complain if this contract is not followed, either by a court in his homeland or by the closest Swiss Counsel or the courts where he is staying at the time. A higher might, war or revolution, which make passing of the waterways impossible, frees agent Zwilchenbart of all his responsibilities.

18.

The trip from Basel, Switzerland takes place by 12 March 1866 and all persons have to be at the bureau with their belongings a day before or earlier if required. Who, at the time of leaving or during it, because of his fault, is late arriving or staying behind is responsible for himself, also one who gave wrong information about his age.

19.

Relatives or officials who sign for the immigrant are responsible for him. This is completed in duplicate, signed by both parties in their own hand and giving both parties one example.

A MOTHER OF NOTE

A MOTHER OF NOTE

Juditha of this story is a cousin of our Matthew Schneider and the granddaughter of Matthew Schneider that is the grandfather to Matthew of Pinckneyville, IL. It shows all they had to consider as they decided to leave Austria. It also shows the pain of their decisions. This part of the family went to New Ulm, MN.

A Mother of Note

To America and Home Again, Juditha Schneider, 1821 - 1859.

In some old writing out of the archives a person became know to me. No great conqueror, no statesman, no! An ordinary woman out of the 19th century. I cannot get the memory of her fate out of my mind.

In Sammuellerhaus on Kellhofstrasse, Juditha Schneider came into the world on 10 February 1821. She was the 4th of seven children born to the farmer Lorenz Schneider and Rosalie Rusch and she was born during the long awaited freedom after the French War. Now trade, commerce and industry flourished. In the general prosperity, dozens of new houses were built in the village. Buetze, Roehle and Ach were being populated.

Juditha's grandfather, Mathias Schneider (1745 - 1833), was during this period the Mayor in Wolfurt and a very rich, widely respected man. In 1806 he built the Raedlerhaus on Kellhofstrasse (no. 6) for his children and in 1808, the Schertlerhaus on Flatzbachstrasse (no. 11) and then, in 1813, he bought the large Sammuellerhaus, where Juditha now first opened her eyes. In 1824 he built yet the Gasthof and Bakery "zum Herschen" next to his own house on Kirchstrasse.

Juditha's younger sister, Katharina Schneider, later married Johann Baptist Boehler and founded with him, in his parent's house on Kellhofstrasse, the great lineage of Sammueller-Boehler.

Juditha herself, already at the age of 19, married her half-cousin, Jakob Schneider (1812 - 1901) and took over, with him, the beautiful Raedlerhaus and, therewith, the rich property. What may Juditha have been dreaming of at her wedding in May 1840? Of a happy life with her caring husband, of healthy children, of growing old together in this beautiful homeland? Her destiny turned out differently.

Her husband, Jakob, took over the business of his father, Jadob Schneider, Sr. of weaving and producing cotton fabrics. As such, he supplied the many Wolfurt hand weavers with thread, ensured the quality of the weaving and finally sold the product in Switzerland. But, now the hand weaving was being replaced by the new textile mills. Within a few years Jakob lost his livelihood. Finally, in 1852, he had to sell his house and grounds to his cousin, Josef

A MOTHER OF NOTE

Anton Schertler, who, with his brick works in Roehle, and had become rich. Later, Schertler left the house to his son-in-law, teacher Wendelin Raedler

The Schneiders had only one desperate hope left: America! In the "Land of Unlimited Possibilities " one could, perhaps, again replace one's lost wealth.

From the chief official of the local government Jakob, on 28 April 1852, along with five other Wolfurt families, obtained emigration approval and passports. Four of these, eight adults and eleven children, left on 16 May and arrived on the "Statesman" in New York on 13 July 1852. Among them was the Ferdinand Kalb family, who a few years later made his new homeland on Kalb's Creek (New Ulm, MN).

The Jakob Schneider family had to postpone their trip. About the time of the due departure date, their ninth child came into the world, the ninth in eleven years.

Along with Jakob, his younger brother, Mathias also postponed his departure for about four weeks. On 16 June 1852 a second Wolfurt group left on the long trip to the unknown:

Jakob and Juditha Schneider with their 5 remaining children

Juditha's single sister, Anna Schneider

Jakob's brother, Mathias Schneider, with his wife, Rosa Hoefle, and 6 small Children. They also had to sell their new house (Orglers, Unterlindenstrasse27).

Joseph Reiner with his wife, Anna Erker, and 4 children. (They also had to sell their house on Kreuzstrasse 2).

Altogether 22 people, 7 adults and 15 children.

A MOTHER OF NOTE

Their travel took them through Switzerland and across France, on the Atlantic. In LeHarve they shipped out on the "Splendid". Deprivation in the over crowded mid decks of the emigration ship's crossing in those days followed the strain of the long march over land.

Then the 6 months old Johann Georg Reiner died and found his grave in the waves. The others landed in NewYork on 17 August 1852. Now they still had to travel hundreds of miles in a strange land to the other Wolfurters in Ohio. They managed it but the price was high! Already in their first month, Juditha's infant, Jakob III, died and her four year old offspring, Agatha, died of exhaustion.

For one whole year the father, Jakob, took on all possible jobs to provide for his family. But then he became seriously ill. In September 1852, the mother, Juditha, bore her tenth child here in Ohio, Rosa II. This child also died, there was nothing left for her in this foreign land. She wanted to go home again, home to Wolfurt! The poverty at home could not be worse than this affliction.

No one knows what Juditha had to endure, with her sick husband and her last three children, Anna, Lorenz, and the now 4 year old, Mathias, on her second dreadful Atlantic crossing. They found their way home, home on the Bodensee (Lake Constance) and the Steussbergs.

The reception through the state authorities in Bregenz, though, was cool. In the Landesarchiv is an incomplete record of Jakob Schneider's interrogation by the district authorities: " In the summons that took place to gather the details of Jakob Schneider of Wolfurt, 42 years old, father of 3 children, concerning his return from America."

He, himself, reported, " The unhealthy climate in the State of Ohio and the poor provisions for the welfare of my children, then the death of three children, frightened me so much, that I decided to leave America. There I had occupied myself with manual labor, namely stucco work, laying bricks and wallpapering, so that I could leave. I boarded in New York on 30 October 1853, with my family, for Havre and landed there 20 November. In Havre, and also in Paris, no one asked me for my passport, so I left, without difficulty, for Basel and then by steamship to Lindau. From Lindau I walked here. At the customs they only asked us if we had any contraband and then let us proceed. Two days later I picked up my baggage in Lindau and only then, did they ask me at the customs if I came from America."

The family again arrive in Wolfurt on 26 November 1853. A few days later Jakob Schneider applied for re-admission as an "Austrian Citizen" and a resident of Wolfurt. He applogized, therein, for his intention to emigrate, "that the reason was not out of discontent for political reasons or unsatisfaction, but only so that I and my family, through diligence and speculation could become better off."

The municipal committee, under Mayor Martin Schertler, summoned the family to a meeting of their own on 23 February 1854, in the school house, for the purpose of evaluating his naturalization re-admission. Jakob's elderly father had to stand surety for the hearing.

The customs in Bregenz created difficulty. Since the Revolution in 1848, they had a new decree with extreme restrictions. A character reference, completed by Pastor Hiller in Wolfurt on 16 March 1854, made a positive outcome possible: "Jakob Schneider is very peaceable and quiet, seeks to serve God diligently, not only on Sundays and Holy Days, but also during the week, and is not political, at least as known by the undersigned."

Because Schneider no longer owned a house, he had to seek shelter in a rented home. In the old Engel in the village, he found shelter in a rented home. How must the mother, Juditha, have felt as she meagerly furnished. And, always again, she became with child. She brought another 4 children into the world, 14 in all:

- | | |
|---------------|------|
| 11. Agatha II | 1855 |
| 12. Fidel | 1857 |
| 13. Jakob IV | 1858 |
| 14. Juditha | 1859 |

The giving birth to her last child brought forth her own last breath. On the day after the birth, The courageous woman, afflicted with such hard fate, died on 27 April 1859 at the age of 38.

The child, however, lived. The little Juditha grew up in Wolfurt, and later also left for America, became homesick and, after one year again returned, and died at the age of 77 on 5 August 1936. And the others?, the 14 year old Lorenz, whom they brought back healthy from America, the mother had to lay to rest in the Wolfurt cemetery only four weeks before her own death. The widowed father now had to worry about 6 motherless children. He looked for a foster home to bring up his children, the 4 smallest children were all under 4 years old.. Juditha's sister, Maria Anna, as the Godmother of the children took them in. She was married to Lorenz Duer in Kohlshaus #3 Achstrasse and was herself childless.

The six motherless children, after Juditha Schneider's death on 27 April 1859, were:

- | | | |
|------------|------|--------------|
| 2. Anna | 1842 | 17 years old |
| 7. Mathias | 1849 | 10 years old |
| 11. Agatha | 1855 | 4 years old |
| 12. Fidel | 1857 | 3 years old |

A MOTHER OF NOTE

13. Jakob	1858	1 year old
14. Juditha	1859	1 day old

How long the father, Jakob Schneider, remained in the Engel household is not known. The Godparents of the four youngest children were the Roesle landlord, Fidel Mueller and Maria Anna Schneider. She had married the brick yard owner, Lorenz Duer, on the Ach in 1846 and, with him, moved to the new house Achstrasse 3. She remained childless and now took in the motherless children.

In March 1865, the 23 year old Anna died of emaciation. Only two months later, the 7 year old Jakob followed her, dying of typhus. One year later the father, Jakob, left for America with little Fidel.

In the early 1870's, after serving his military time in the Austrian army, Mathias also emigrated. He first tried his luck in California and then went to Indiana. When his wife died, after a short marriage, he had his youngest sister, Juditha come out from Wolfurt. She, however, stayed only 1 year with him and then returned to her homeland. Mathias died in an automobile accident in New Ulm, MN in 1923.

In Wolfurt, there remained only two of Juditha's 14 children. After the death of their Godmother and Aunt in 1869, Lorenz Duer married for the second time. Soon thereafter the motherless children left the house on the Ach. Agatha found a place with the metalworker, Boehler, Kreuzstrasse 5. Along with many other young Wolfurt girls, she went daily, on foot, to the textile mill in Kennelbach. She died of a tumor in 1899, at the age of 44.

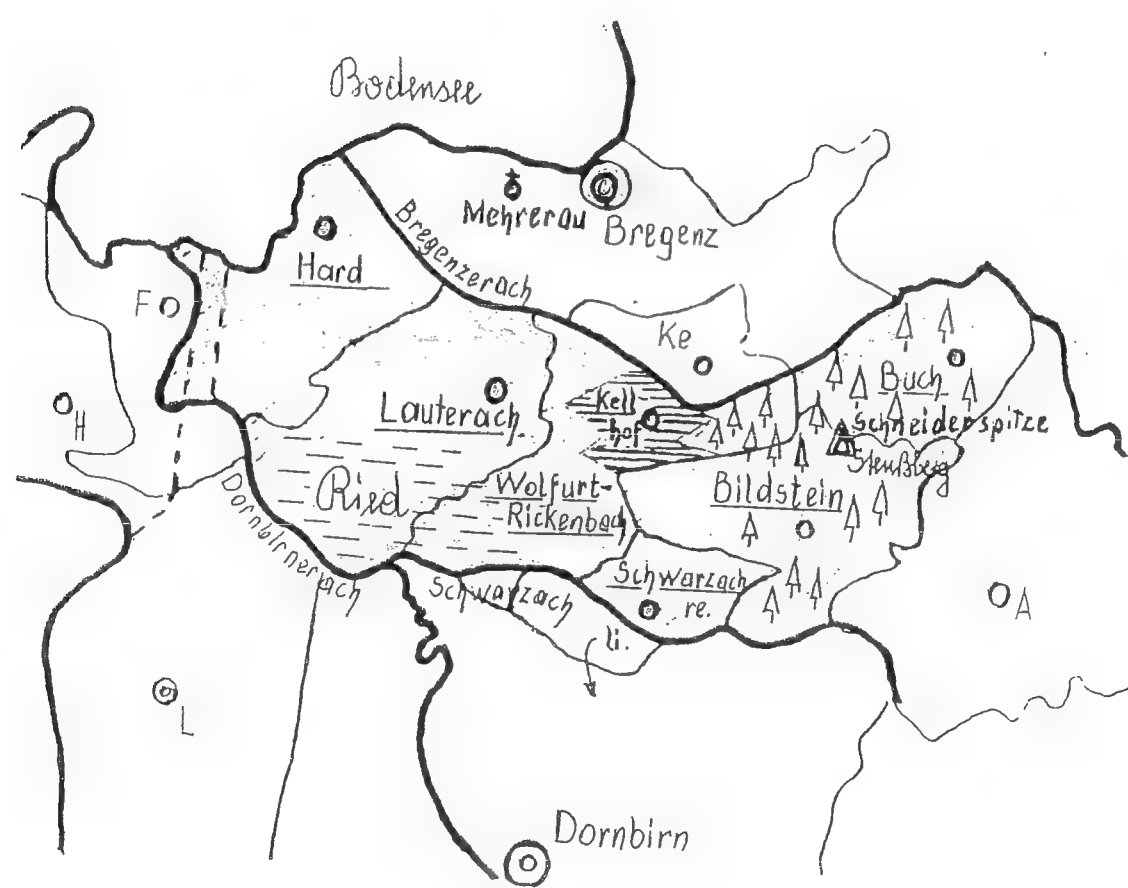

Now Juditha, the youngest, was alone. She left Wolfurt. All that is known is a notation of her death on 5 August 1836, presumably in America. Now lived only the last of the 14 children, Fidel Schneider, who was named after his Godfather, the Wolfurter Roessle landlord. On 18 June 1950, he also died, as an old man of 93 years, in New Ulm, MN. Only he of his family was able to pass on the Schneider bloodline. And so the bloodline carried on in 41 grandchildren and numerous great grandchildren, over there in the "Land of Unlimited Possibilities".

This article was written in German by Director Siegfried Heim, a historian and archivist in Wolfurt. The translation into English was by Wilfred Schneider of Kamloops, B. C. in Canada. Wilfred is the great grandson of Juditha Schneider. Wilfred is a very kind, older gentleman and a part of the Schneider family that settled in New Ulm, MN and later moved to Canada for more land and space. He wrote a history on this part of the family.

Wolfurt is located on the outskirts of Bregenz, the capital of the Province of Vorarlberg in Austria and is on the eastern end of Lake Constance, locally referred to as the Bodensee.

Hofsteig

Das Gericht Hofsteig umfaßte ein fast 60 km² großes Gebiet zwischen Steußberg und Bodensee am linken Ufer der Bregenzerach und rechts von Schwarzach und Dornbirnerach. Mit Ausnahme des selbständigen Kellhofs wurde das Gericht Hofsteig seit dem Mittelalter als Einheit von einem Ammann verwaltet. Im Jahre 1806 wurde es auf die sechs Hofsteiggemeinden aufgeteilt.

FATHERHOUSE

A very old folk-song from Vorarlberg

Where the little village comes to the end,
Where the mill-wheel at the brook turns around,
There stands in a smelling bunch of blossoms
A little hut, my fatherhouse.

There two hearts beat for me,
Full of love and full of faith.
My father and my mother,
They are the hearts, gentle and pure.

In it still stands my cradle.
In it I learnt my first prayer.
In it play and fun always found a place.
In it I dreamt my first dream.

Therefore for the most beautiful castle,
Firm as a rock and gigantic,
I never would exchange my dear little hut.
For there is only one fatherhouse!

I gave them many papers, many copies out of our old parish records from 1672, 1695, from Jacob I. and from Jacob II. and from the other old Schneiders. But I said to them: Do not recognize our country with your head by papers! Do it with your nose, with your tongue, with your eyes, with your heart! So I told them old stories in the church of Bildstein and near the burial places of their ancestors in Wolfurt.

Anniversary.....

Mr. and Mrs. James D. Brand celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary on December 31, 2002. Father Munier married James and the former Phyllis Jones on December 31, 1942 at Saint Bruno's Rectory. Mr. Brand worked 31 years as a coal miner and retired from Freeman United Coal Company in 1986.

Jim and Phyllis enjoyed an anniversary dinner with their family at Pioneer Cabin. Those attending were their daughter Judy Opp and husband Sam, son Bob Brand and wife Janet, their granddaughters Lora Sutton and Bobbie Sue Brand and great-grandchildren Jordon Sutton and Sage and Sable Swain. Also attending were Phyllis' brother Ed Jones and wife Sara and their grandson Logan. Unable to attend were great-grandson Brandon Sutton and grandson Josh Brand and wife Missy of Fort Worth, TX., who are expecting their first child any day. Everyone enjoyed sharing this very special occasion with Jim and Phyllis.

MANN SCHNEIDER WEDDING WEDNESDAY

Married by Rev. Father Schneider of St. Brunos Catholic Church at Eight O'clock--Large Number Attend Wedding and Are Guests at the Mann Home East of this City During Day.

Mr. George Mann and Miss Rose Schneider, both prominent young people of this city, were married Wednesday morning at eight o'clock in St. Brunos Catholic church by Rev. Father Schneider. They were accompanied by Frank Bischof and Miss Gertrude Mann. The groom is the third son of well liked among her many associates and friends.

After the wedding ceremony the young couple and their relatives and friends gathered at the home of the groom's father, where a sumptuous wedding feast was in store for them. A big dinner and supper was enjoyed and a merry time was had un-

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Mann, who reside on a farm one mile north-west of this city, and are very prominent and prosperous farmers. Geo. is a fireman for the Illinois Central and makes this city his home. He is a young man of energy and thrift and very popular among the young folks of this city. Miss Schneider is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Schneider (deceased) and is til a late hour that night.

The accompanying half tone shows the house which was recently purchased by Mr. Mann, from Geo. Bischof, and which was nicely furnished in advance for his bride.

The Democrat joins in congratulations with this young couple's numerous friends in wishing them many years of happiness and prosperity and welcomes them to our city as residents.
